Also Sprach Zarathustra, op. 30 (in Portuguese: so Zarathustra spoke) is a sympathetic poem composed in 1896 by Richard Strauss, inspired by the philosopher's treaty of the same name written by Friedrich Nietzsche. The practical composer performed the first performance in the city of Frankfurt am Main. The peãão is about half an hour. His introduction was known worldwide as a musical theme in the film 2001: Space Odyssey, an 1968 instrument by Arthur Clarke and Stanley Kubrick. Described for the following instruments: Família Instruments Wood Piccolo 3 FLUTES (a 3rd Piccolo, 3 Obion © S Ingless 3 clarinets in my bemol and if bemol clarinet bass in bemol 3 bibls counterphagote metals 6 tubes in ventíl f or Cordos 2 Harps 16 Violines (I) 16 Violines (II) 12 Violas 12 Celoneelos 8 double bass (some with the severe rope in Dén. The structure of the Richard Strauss structure is divided into nine sections made with only clear light intervals. Richard Strauspras designated sections according to the chapters of the books: Einleitung (Introduction), or Sunrise von den Hinterweltlern (of the ancient men) von der Groäßen Sehnsucht Leidenschaften (of the joys and passions) of the engraved (the tanmulus-song) von der Wissenschaft This topic consists ofTrown notes at fifth and octave intervals, such as dâ³-sol-dome. "Von den hinterweltlern" begins with cello, basses, and the way before the wool passage of the section. As following sections, "von der groäyen Sehnsucht" and "von den Freuden und Leidenschaften", include more severe themes. "Von der wissenschaft" shows a differentiated theme in escape starting with double basses and cello, which consists of all as 12 scale notes Sumergible. It is one of the few sections of orchestral literature where double basses need to touch the most severe self of the piano. "Der Genersende" Edad as a replay of the original theme and brings the clan with a massive chord involving the entire orchestra. "Das Tanzlied" brings a violin solo for almost all the section. The closing of "Nachtwandlerlied" is not summarized with flutes, flutes and violins playing a larger chord, while the most severe strings play a dâ³. One of the greatest compositional themes of the Peã © the contrast between the tones of the larger self, representing humanity, and the larger, representing the universe. Although larger and larger ones are adjacent tones, they are totally dissonant: the larger si uses five sighs in the clef while the largest does not use none. At the end of the peã, neither of the two shades is established as a predominant sole. See also death and transfiguration Portal of Art Portal of Mother Obtained of " something bad.
